

“What Do You Do?”

This is a question you get every day.
How you answer it could change your life.

The most-asked question in the business world today is probably: What do you do? How you answer that question can provide the jump start for a stellarBeginning™ that changes the direction of your life.

This question is an invitation to tell your story in a compelling and memorable way that makes the listener want to know more about you. It's also a question that most of us get at least once a week – so you will have many opportunities to get really good at providing a response that opens doors for you.

To create your best reply for what you do:

- Identify the successes in your resume.
- Envision what you'd like to do more of.
- Understand what people count on you for.

Now that you're on track, get rid of old habits that sabotage you:

- Don't be literal. You are more than your job title.
- Don't be negative. Negative beginnings end quickly.
- Don't try to SELL yourself. You don't know what they're buying.

Even if you like the room you're in – it's always nice to have doors open in places you never thought you'd be welcome – just by being you smartly. The Zoned know that the most spectacular part of being you is not what you do – but how you do it and why you do it.

Here's how it works:

When asked the magic “what do you do” question, a colleague used to answer literally, telling people she was a “marketing executive for cable television.” People who weren't in the cable industry tuned her out, which limited her potential for stellarBeginnings™. When she considered expanding into new fields, we reviewed her resume and identified the successes she enjoyed the most. A clear pattern emerged: her greatest success was her ability to launch three successful cable networks, something the industry counted on her to do. With that insight, we were ready to craft a compelling response that opened the door for her segue into environmental marketing: “I launch ideas whose time has come.”

So – what do you do??
